Foreword of the Dean

In 1991, the Faculty of International Relations (FIR) became the successor of the Faculty of Trade, one of the founding faculties of the University of Economics. The new name was not the only change; new content for the study programs came about as a result of the new socio-economic situation after the Velvet Revolution and represented the strengthening of internationalization as the main competitive advantage of FIR graduates.

FIR is the largest of the six faculties of the university, with more than 4500 students and 250 employees. FIR offers a wide range of programs, which are all characterized by substantial interdisciplinarity and a strong international focus. Emphasis is also put on foreign language education with demanding requirements in terms of achieved proficiency to communicate in at least two foreign languages. During their studies, students may acquire internationally recognized certificates of language proficiency.

FIR is very active and successful in the sphere of internationalization. In 2012 and again in 2014, the International Trade master’s program obtained, as the first in the Czech Republic, the prestigious international EPAS accreditation, granted by the European Foundation for Management Development (EFMD); in addition, the EGEI program (Economics of Globalization and European Integration) was repeatedly selected by the European Commission for financing from the Erasmus Mundus fund. FIR also offers other English-taught accredited programs – IBB (Bachelor of International Business) and the master’s program IDS (International and Diplomatic Studies).

At FIR you may study in English on every level of studies, from bachelor’s to doctoral. With regard to the number of subjects taught in foreign languages, the number of visiting professors from abroad and students of FIR travelling for studies abroad, our faculty is among the best faculties within the Czech Republic.

The goal of FIR is to strengthen its internationalization also within the field of research, further deepen its cooperation with the private sector and continuously update the teaching process with the latest trends and knowledge. FIR thus strives for fulfillment of its mission as an internationally recognized, research oriented institution of higher education, preparing top specialists capable of succeeding in the ever changing international environment.

Profile and Organizational Structure

The Faculty of International Relations is one of six faculties at the University of Economics, Prague (VŠE) – the leading public university in the field of economics in the Czech Republic. The Faculty of International Relations offers a wide range of study fields in bachelor’s, master’s and doctoral study programs to Czech as well as foreign applicants.

Study programs meet the standards and guidelines of the European Credit Transfer and Accumulation System (ECTS). Due to proper implementation of the credit system, VŠE was awarded the right to use the ECTS Label and DS Label certificates by the European Commission. Regarding its organizational structure, FIR consists of departments and institutes. There are seven science-based departments and four language departments. The Academic Senate has 18 members in total, 12 faculty members and 6 students. Within the Scientific Council, there are internal and external members. FIR is led by the Dean and there are four Vice-Deans in the management.

Study and Pedagogical Activity

The bachelor’s and master’s programs are full-time studies, except for the Business Management bachelor’s program, which is accredited in the part-time study form. Doctoral programs are either full-time or part-time. Studying the programs in Czech is free of charge. Over the long-term, studies at the Faculty of International Relations attract a lot of interest – the ratio of admitted students to applicants in the bachelor’s study programs is one to three. In 2012 and again n 2014, the International Trade master’s program obtained the international EPAS accreditation.

Cooperation with Corporate Partners

The Faculty of International Relations aims to have close cooperation and mutual relations with corporate partners. Each field of study has its Strategic Review and Corporate Advisory Board that involves top managers and representatives of governmental and other institutions. In most cases, the board members are FIR alumni. Corporate partners support the development of the faculty by involving experts in teaching, providing consultations for theses and seminar papers, offering internships and specialized practices as well as by providing financial support to projects. The faculty’s partners include e.g. Globus, EGAP, Komercní banka, L’Oréal, Procter & Gamble, the Ministry of Foreign Affairs, Ministry of Industry and Trade of the Czech Republic and the Milan Jurčeka Foundation.
